

Hi,

I hope you're well. I recently came across a course on UtterSkills.com that I believe would be highly beneficial for my professional development and our team's efficiency

The course focuses on essential skills beyond coding for IT professionals, including

- Communication skills (effective feedback, explaining and understanding concepts)
- Interaction with team members and non-technical stakeholders
- Business acumen
- People and mentoring skills
- Collaboration and efficiency

It is specifically designed for the IT industry and is delivered entirely online through a micro-learning format. This approach involves short, daily sessions of about 15 minutes each, making it easy to integrate into my work schedule without any disruption. The course includes approximately 50 episodes and costs €799.

I am confident that the skills gained from this course would enhance my contributions to the team and overall performance. You can find more details at UtterSkills.com.

I would appreciate it if you could review the course and consider approving the use of my training budget for this purpose.

Thank you for your consideration.

Cheers
